MANNINGTON TEAM LACKS OLD PUNCH

Ragged Work Features Practice Last Night—Second Team Speedy.

MANNINGTON, Oct. 5.—Nothing is being left undone by Coach Jerry Blake in preparation for the game Saturday with the Blackhawk Park eleven at Blackhawk Park, and the local team is being put through long and hard work-out each day.

All indications at present are for another hot day, and it will take all the strength of the players to keep their "pep" through sixty minutes of play. Blackhawk Park has been a regular desert this week and the dust is so thick at times it is almost impossible to see the players on the field and if the weather does not change some rain before Saturday it will be necessary to have the field sprinkled before the game.

Another long scrimmage was held yesterday, featuring by the time work of the second team. It was only after a hard struggle that the varsity was able to make any headway through the defense.

A particularly fine showing was made by Barker, G. Beall, Huey, Krumer, and Hess on the second team and it would not be at all surprising, the coach stated, to see some of these men in the varsity line-up in the coming game with Fairmont.

The first team was ragged last night and fished much of the game. That was in evidence last night in the practice game, and the lack of punch was poor, and there was little team work in getting on the signals, it appears a difficult task to get the first team running smoothly with only two more days left before the game. Two or three players on the first string were slightly injured last evening in the scrimmage, but they will probably be back in the line before Saturday.

The Mannington team is being drilled against the plays run by Fairmont in the game with Monongah, although it is realized that the resistance offered by Monongah was rather weak. Still, there is a chance that the same plays might be used again, and if they are the Mannington boys will know how to meet them.

The next two days will be devoted entirely to correcting the team plays and insuring a little more smoothness of running the game. No scrimmage will be held before the game, and it is hoped that the crippled players will be able to start the contest. No line-up has been given out yet, and none will be until Friday evening or Saturday morning, it was stated today.

The routing organization of the high school has been very active this week in preparing the delegation for the coming classic, and the routing squad will be ready to make a lot of noise to spur the players on. Fairmont High school will be out in force, and school spirit will keep things lively.

The game will start at 7:15, giving the Mannington fans time to reach the park on the 3 o'clock car. Those who have only a short time to spend away from their work will be able to see the game and leave only two hours time by leaving Mannington at 3 o'clock and returning at 5 o'clock. Automobiles will also be used to carry fans to the grounds, and hundreds will go by that means.

The favors in the form of small paper cups decorated with black cats and filled with candy were given. The color theme was suggestive of hallow yellow and black predominating. Covers were laid for nineteen.

RAPID PROGRESS NOW BEING MADE

Additions to Bartlett Hotel Are Being Rushed to Completion.

MANNINGTON, Oct. 5.—Rapid progress is being made on the brick-work of the addition being built in the rear of the Hotel Bartlett, and the walls are already well started.

This addition will include a refrigerating room thirty-six feet long where ice will be made for the hotel use in an ice machine to be installed later, and will also serve as a storage room for perishable foods.

In the center, beside the present dining room, a sun parlor fifty feet long will be built with Hufman casement windows opening into the court. This room will be used as a dining room at times when the regular dining room is in use for special parties. The lobby was formerly used for this purpose.

A new and roomy lavatory will be built at the end next the main building, utilizing more than eight feet of the new space. The entire length of the new addition is ninety-four feet.

Carpenters are busy adding the finishing touches to two-five-room apartments over the garage and power plant. This building is thoroughly fire-proof throughout, and every room is floored with concrete.

The garage will comfortably house a dozen automobiles and will be used for the hotel autos, as well as cars belonging to guests. The power plant is fitted with two gas engines, each connected to a generator which furnishes electric power for the hotel as well as one or two other business houses nearby.

The court between the power plant and the new dining room will be paved with concrete with the exception of small sections around trees which are growing there.

Plans now include the raising of Bartlett alley to permit easy entrance to the court. This alley leads back to the livery barn in the rear of the hotel. This barn and the old mill farther back are being covered with brick-face iron, and laborers are raising and putting new foundations under the old mill.

When this work is completed, the present dining room and kitchen of the hotel will be remodeled and new equipment added. New furnishings have already been added to the guest rooms, and several additional baths added. An improved vapor heating system supplies the hotel with heat, and a large Rudd instantaneous heater supplies each room with hot water.

When completed the Hotel Bartlett will be one of the most completely equipped in this section of the state, it is said, and will compare favorably with hotels usually found in cities much larger than Mannington.

OILS LEAD GAINS IN STOCKS TODAY

Specialties Also Advance at Opening of Market—Coca-Cola Sets Record.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Oils and specialties led at the opening of today's stock market, Standard Oil showing exceptional strength at the outset, gaining 4-8 points, while Standard Oil of California, Mexican Petroleum, Houston and Pierce Oil preferred moved up 1 to 2 points. Nearly all the other oils improved fractionally. Coca-Cola, which has been bought heavily on speculative belief that the extra dividend disbursements are near, was pushed up 2-1/2 points to a new high record. Consolidated Clear and American Timken Roller Bearings also ascended to a new peak. Ralls and steels lagged behind the rest of the list.

Reading, Delaware, Lackawanna & Western and Gulf States Steel climbing a point with fractional gains in most of the other standard shares in these groups. May Department Stores, Famous Players, National Biscuit and Continental Can all advanced a point or more.

Easier money rates, increased public buying, lack of effective resistance to pool operations and rumors that several large industrial companies were contemplating capital readjustment resulted in a demand which embraced virtually the entire list. Standard Oil shares weakened after their initial show of strength. Mexican Petroleum, however, extended its gain to 4-5 points and was followed to higher ground by the domestic oils. Pierce Oil preferred being particularly prominent on a gain of 3 points. Studebaker was quite active, rising 3 points, and Postum Cereal was lifted up 3-5/8 points. Call money opened and renewed at 4 per cent.

Chicago Grain.
CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Renewed uneasiness regarding activities by the Turks led to higher prices for wheat today. In the first part of the Board of Trade session. Unsettled conditions in Liverpool quotations was construed as indicating that yesterday's reports of a probable quick peaceful settlement between the Turks and the allies had been more or less premature. Another bullish factor was better demand for domestic winter wheat to be shipped to Europe by way of the Gulf of Mexico. The opening, which ranged from 5-8c to 1-1/4c higher, with December $1.07 to $1.07-1/4 and May $1.03-1/4 to $1.03-1/2 followed by a slight further gain and then a slight reaction.

Corn and oats were firmer with wheat. After opening 1-4c higher, December 61-1/4 to 61-3/8 the corn market eased back a little. Oats started unchanged to 1-3c higher, December 37-7/8 and later scored slight general gains before beginning to react.

Provisions reflected firmness of hog values.

Manager Knight is rustling the very best timber available for the game Sunday, and will give the Mannington fans a treat by putting Pop Shriver, a former Mannington boy on the mound for Ida May.

Other players who will probably be included in the Ida May line-up are Turkovich, Griffin, Phillips, the two Marshalls, Beveridge, Mills and Talmage.

Additional service will be supplied by the traction company, it is said, and increased seating facilities will be put in the park. It is expected that the largest crowd to witness a ball game in this section for years will see the game Sunday.

Making Your Own Movies

By JAMES A. CREELMAN
Film Guild Scenario Editor

Twelve years ago Bronco Billy Anderson used to start out in the morning with a camera, a carload of actors and a bright idea. He wrote the scenario on the back of an envelope as he motored towards some likely "location" and then, in the course of the day, filmed the entire story.

Nowadays it takes about two months to write the scenario—exclusive of the time taken to write the original story. But you can still steal Bronco Billy's idea of making a movie told almost entirely in exterior outdoor scenes—a feat to which cowboy pictures lend themselves.

Study your original story for several days, and analyze it for dramatic faults. As you write the story will naturally divide itself into sequences of action occurring in various periods of time in the same locality. These sequences correspond to the acts of a play and in a five reeler there are from 12 to 40 of them.

Each sequence opens and closes with a fade effect, fading in or fading out. Each progresses to its own dramatic climax. Sequences are connected with lapse-of-time or change-of-locale subtitles (the written words on the screen) such as "One Hour Later," or "In Jim's Apartment."

First plan the scenario in skeleton form. Try to write it all in action which needs no words. Where words are absolutely necessary put in a subtitle preferably a spoken title. Establish each new setting with a long shot; after that use close-ups chiefly.

As soon as you are satisfied with the skeleton begin to dictate the final scenario. Dictating is easier than writing it, because you can visualize as you go along. You must dictate every move, every gesture, every nuance of feeling in your script.

The only mechanical effects you need bother with are the fades and rises (your curtains) and the dissolve-outs and dissolve-ins where the scenes melt into each other. If you want any other effect, describe it in simple English and leave it to the director. The fewer mechanical effects you have in your scenario the better, anyway. Double exposure transparencies and the like remind the audience that it is only a movie after all.

Do not write in any action which does not bear strictly on the plot. You can prune your scenes down tremendously by planning two parallel lines of action and cutting from one to the other. While Mary is fighting off the villain, John is rushing to the rescue in an automobile, and so forth.

You'd better devote the first one or two sequences to character building. After that start the suspense, the story proper.

which the hero and his leading lady are the happy couple. Mutt and Jeff, comedy and news are the other attractions.

The Dixie
Harold Lloyd, who will appear today and the rest of the week at the Dixie in "Grandma's Boy" is said to be extremely modest concerning his achievements and off screen, is a quiet, serious minded young fellow who talks very little, but thinks much, and when he does speak he makes it count. Herbert Howe, relates how when interviewing him regarding his work he evaded taking to himself any credit when he commented upon the success of what

The Princess.
Among the most encouraging signs of the recent motion picture releases is the absence of sex and problem films with which the screen was surfeited months ago, and of course they still exist, but are fewer in number.

We have noted that for some time the pictures in a whole have been those that appealed to the best of human nature, and if crime was introduced it has been given in contrast with a life well spent, and the reward of right living emphasized. There have been too, a generous supply of cheerful mirth-provoking films—clean fun, minus objectionable features.

"Golden Dreams," the offering at the Princess today is a story of the first class, in which a deserving and honest young Scotchman finds himself in the grip of a designing, treacherous Spaniard, but manages to extricate himself and the girl he loves.

It is a story by Zane Grey, and those who have read her writings will find in it the same spirit of romance and adventure that characterize her other stories.

The leading roles are taken in a capable manner by Claire Adams and Carl Gantvort.

Unusually interesting sport and international news complete the program.

The Nelson
Slowly but surely the "wild west" pictures of the past are being replaced by films that interpret the spirit of the West as it really exists today in wide open sparsely populated sections, and Tom Mix, like William S. Hart, is doing much toward setting right in the minds of the motion-picture public the erroneous idea that the west is still the wild and woolly country of long ago.

"For Big Stakes" in which he is seen at the Nelson today, is a lively spirited narrative of the Southwest where the rangers dwell on the open plains, over shadowed by the mountainous country.

As usual Mr. Mix brings to the story a fine wholesome personality, that makes itself felt in the community.

A feature that adds much to the realism and interest of the film is a prairie fire that sweeps everything before it and of course, there is a pretty romance, in is considered his best effort—the picture now showing at this theater—but his reply was, "We have a great organization."

"Grandma's Boy" has not only increased the admiration of his old friends, but made for him many new ones, as we happen to know, and whatever some writers may say to the contrary, we believe that Mr. Lloyd has shown that it is quite possible to interest and hold the attention of an audience with a evening of comedy. If it is the right sort, and this one is all that picturegoers could ask or expect.

There are many ingenious and original ideas that are distinctly Lloyd's own, in spite of the fact that some motion picture critics have been unkind enough to accuse him of copying some of Charley Chaplin's stunts. But we think they each have an art of fun making peculiarly their own and can stand upon their own feet, even though one pair of them happen to be somewhat misshapen.

As the short subject a Sherlock Holmes story is featured.

SOMEONE TO GET FINE FORD FREE

Will Be Big Prize Given Out During Trade Expansion Period Next Week.

Who's going to win the Ford touring car, when the Fairmont trade expansion period closes on Saturday evening of next week? That's the big question now among those in the city and out of the city who are interested in the third event of this nature to be staged by the local merchants on October 12, 13 and 14.

The drawing for the car will be made on Saturday night, and the winner will be notified as soon as possible. It will not be necessary to remain in the city Saturday evening to win the prize. The drawing will be made after the stores close. For every dollar's worth of goods purchased at any store that has contributed to the general trade expansion fund each customer will be given a chance on the Ford car, so the number of chances one has will be regulated by the number of purchases made. Along this line it was pointed out today that only stores and merchants who have joined the trade expansion movement will be entitled to give away these tickets on the Ford. Any merchant who has not yet been solicited by the general committee should get in touch with James Welton at once, it was advised.

There will be all manner of exceptional bargains offered in the local stores during the three days of the campaign, and from the interest that has been shown to date, it seems certain that there will be a throng in Fairmont every day. The first day will be dollar day, the second bargain day, and the third will be labor jubilee day.
